

Hardcopy vs. E-Book vs. Studio License For Books by Teresa Richert

Hardcopy: Printed 9" x 12" and sent by mail. Shipping charges are extra. Making copies of any portion of the book is illegal. Copies for adjudication and/or competition purposes are allowed without prior consent provided that those copies are returned or destroyed after the event.

E-Book: PDF ready to print on 8.5" x 11" paper. Sent by email. An e-book purchase entitles the purchaser to maintain one electronic copy and one printed copy for personal use (or for teachers, one printed copy for the use of only one student at any given time. For piano duets or trios or voice/piano combinations, one printed copy of the full score for each student performer is permitted for one piece at a time only. Teachers are encouraged to have students purchase their own PDF of the book or individual piece(s) they are learning so that students can retain a legal copy indefinitely.)

The e-book is a legal version only when accompanied by a valid receipt. Not transferable. The purchaser does not have permission to create electronic or paper copies of the book or excerpts of it for the purposes of sale or distribution.

Additional copies for adjudication and/or competition purposes are allowed without prior consent provided that those copies are returned or destroyed after the event.

Studio E-book License: PDF ready to print on 8.5" x 11" paper. Sent by email. This license entitles teachers to reproduce the digital material solely for their personal use and that of their students. Students of the teacher holding the license are entitled to maintain one copy of the book or excerpt from it for their own use only. For studio e-book license privileges, the student needs to purchase his/her own studio license.

The studio e-book license is a legal version only when accompanied by a valid receipt. The license is not transferable (even to teachers or students within the same studio.) The purchaser does not have permission to create electronic or paper copies of the book or excerpts of it for the purposes of sale or distribution.

Additional copies for adjudication and/or competition purposes are allowed without prior consent provided that those copies are returned or destroyed after the event.
